

Your latest effort has been 2 years in the making! Tell us about it, what can fans expect?

Listening to everything from rock, pop, dance, funk and jazz, I have enjoyed the 70's, 80's, and 90's with all they had to offer. I was really trying to recreate some 70's like vocal styling in the GP album.

I liked when you could hear a harmonic layering of voices throughout the entire song, like with The Bee Gees. I also love Prince and the way he funks out the guitar. I specifically sought that out for several songs on the GP album. The GP album is an adventure in experimenting with all sorts of influences that have moved me throughout my life. Some people experiment in private but I wanted to share mine with people by making an album out of it. It is eclectic and fun while exhibiting real musicianship and artistry.

I wanted to create my own sound while expressing my own unique point of view through the songwriting. It is an intimate thing to expose yourself but I think its one of the most beautiful things a person can do.

Throughout the making of this album I've learned that the inspiration for it comes naturally. The GP album will be released in July through my label, which is called GrooveStar Entertainment. The album will also be shopped at major labels for a 'label to label' deal. It will be available on our Myspace page, CDbaby, and itunes.
